HOW TO CHOOSE YOUR GAAMERICAS CORPORATE REPRESENTATIVE

The designated GAAmericas Corporate Representative will be the main contact between your company and the Gravure Association of the Americas. As a corporate member of GAAmericas, your company may have as many employees on our mailing list as it sees fit, but official business should be conducted via the Corporate Representative. The Corporate Representative's responsibilities are listed below.

1. VOTING RIGHTS

The Corporate Representative is responsible for voting on any changes to the GAAmericas bylaws or other major decisions as decided by the GAAmericas Board of Directors. This function cannot be designated to anyone other than the official Corporate Representative.

2. PROVIDING COMPANY INFORMATION AND EMPLOYEE DATA TO GAAmericas

Although the Corporate Representative is responsible for the following, any of these duties may be relegated to another employee/department. GAAmericas will be happy to contact these designees directly, once they are named by the Corporate Representative.

About employees, the Corporate Representative:

- Decides which employees and company locations should be listed in GAAmericas' Membership Directory
- Assigns a Location Representative for each location listed with GAAmericas
- Determines which employees should be on the GAAmericas mailing list, including additions and deletions due to personnel changes
- Advises GAAmericas of changes to this list, such as address changes, phone, fax, and e-mail changes
- Provides to GAAmericas the names of employees who might be interested in serving on a GAAmericas Committee or Council, or who may be interested in acting as a speaker or moderator at GAAmericas events

About providing company information:

- The Corporate Representative will, when possible, provide the names of the appropriate personnel for GAAmericas to contact regarding public relations, marketing, human resources, trade shows, environmental issues, safety and health issues, and finances/purchasing. By providing these names, we can serve you better by focusing our mailings and assuring you get the most out of your membership with GAAmericas.
- The Corporate Representative should let GAAmericas know about acquisitions, new plants or plant expansions, and new products. In addition, the Corporate Representative should ensure that GAAmericas receives important press releases and other company news that may be of interest to the gravure industry.
- The Corporate Representative is responsible for completing the forms for the Buyers' Guide edition of GRAVURE, and will receive the application information for the annual Golden Cylinder Awards.

3. BILLING INFORMATION

The Corporate Representative will receive the bill for the annual dues, unless arrangements are made to have it sent to another department/employee.
